

Faculty Position: Systematics

St. Mary's Seminary and University, the first Roman Catholic Seminary in the United States, invites applications for a position in Systematic Theology for the School of Theology/Seminary program, beginning Fall, 2022. This faculty position is responsible for graduate-seminary level teaching in Systematic Theology, with competency in the full range of Catholic doctrine, as well as service as a formator in the Sulpician tradition. The ideal candidate would be a Roman Catholic priest with a terminal ecclesiastical degree in the field, although other Roman Catholics, both religious and lay, women and men, with a terminal degree in Systematic Theology, will be considered for the teaching position. A capacity and interest in teaching Philosophy in the Pre-Theology Program is highly desirable. Academic rank at first appointment is commensurate with prior achievement.

St. Mary's is in the Roland Park neighborhood of Baltimore. The position includes a competitive salary and benefits package. Successful candidates will be subject to a pre-employment background check. Applications received through April 30, 2022.
